

CAMEL COATS ARE BACK!

“One should always dress like a marble column,” Jackie (seen here in 1971) once said.

Everything old is new again! Stars are copying Jackie O’s style to look chic while staying warm

Her grace and poise inspired us, her impeccable style dazzled us. And though 55 years have passed since we were first charmed by Jackie Kennedy Onassis, the impact she had is unforgettable. “The classic silhouettes Jackie favored had an air of elegance and effortlessness that influenced fashion in the 1960s and beyond,” says Cameron Silver, fashion director of QVC’s H by Halston line. From her pillbox hats to her oversize sunglasses, Jackie was, and will forever remain, the First Lady of Style.

Now stars are bringing that elegance to the streets of LA and NYC as they step out in camel coats just like Jackie used to wear. “The neutrality of the beige color and the sleek design make it a dependable piece in any wardrobe, and the style also flatters,” says Silver. He suggests defining the waist with a belt tie for an instant hourglass and keeping accessories sleek for a modern update on Jackie’s classic look.

Lisa Rinna, 53

The soap opera alum nails the timeless look by keeping it simple just like Jackie. Her sleek black bag and understated necklace add to the coat’s charm without distracting, and the tie in the front cinches the waist. Beautiful!

Vanessa Hudgens, 27

Oh, Vanessa. The Grease Live! actress doesn’t have enough winters under her belt to know how to nail this look! Layering a thick scarf, sweater and baggy jeans under the wool coat adds bulk, and leaving the coat semi-open while tied skews sloppy.

Alicia Silverstone, 40

A classic coat like Alicia’s is supposed to be seen, not covered up. The extra long scarf and Wilby Bailey satchel create visual clutter that spoils the clean lines of the jacket. Plus, all that extra baggage conspires to thicken the actress’ petite frame.
